

THE OUTFIT: A LIVING LEARNING COMMUNITY AT KSU

The Center for Young Adult Addiction and Recovery's Collegiate Recovery Community (CRC) has established The Outfit as a roommate matching service for students who are in recovery and wish to join the CRC. To be considered for housing in The Outfit, students must apply, interview and be accepted to the CRC, have been in recovery for at least one year and sign the CRC housing commitment contract. Students applying to be a part of The Outfit should be committed to the principles of recovery, possess strong ethical responsibility and be dedicated to growing in their recovery and academics.

The Outfit is a service provided by the Center for Young Adult Addiction and Recovery's Collegiate Recovery Community. While the staff of the CRC may frequently check in with residents of the Outfit, there will be no drug testing or house manager. It is up to the student to be a good community member and abide by the commitments below. Each student resident of the Outfit is responsible for his own recovery, well-being and growth as well as any behavior which may negatively affect the recovery, well-being and growth of another resident of the Outfit.

Availability is limited. Contact the CRC for more information: recovery@kennesaw.edu / 470-578-2538
